Library Workers make libraries work.

They deserve fair treatment

The employees of the Metro Toronto Library Board are highly trained and dedicated professionals.

They enjoy their work. They want to keep serving library patrons.

But they may soon be forced to go on strike.

The Library Board wants to take away some of their basic rights — their right to technological retraining, to orderly layoff and recall procedures, to seniority benefits.

To protect those rights, Metro library workers may have to walk off the job. Not for more pay. But simply to hold on to what they have.

They need your help to avert a strike.

Please let the Library Board know you want library workers to be treated fairly, and allowed to keep their existing contractual rights.

Call Board Chairman Professor J. Hartley (926-1300 ext. 3337).
